

52

Anna Freud National...

A new mentalization-based curriculum to support teachers and those working in educational settings

Attend a seminar on 4th July about a new mentalization-based curriculum for education professionals, developed by experts at the Anna Freud Centre and UCL. The curriculum is designed to help education professionals better understand how their own experiences impact their work and the students they teach.

The seminar will introduce the curriculum, explore the evidence behind it and share insights into how reflective practice can be used to better manage stressful or challenging classroom dynamics.

Expert international speakers at the seminar will include Joost Hutsebaut (PhD), Stephan Gingelmaier (Prof, Dr), and Tobias Nolte (MD). The seminar will be chaired by Professor Peter Fonagy.

>> Sign up now

Anna Freud
National Centre for Children and Families

Free seminar for schools

A new mentalization-based curriculum to support teachers and those working in educational settings

Chaired by Professor Peter Fonagy

Free live stream
Monday, 4th July 2022
at 4.30 PM

REGISTER NOW!

#SchoolsInMind

Qualitative study explores young people's experiences of HeadStart between 2017 and 2021

As part of the national evaluation of HeadStart, a £67.4 million National Lottery funded programme set up by The National Lottery Community Fund, the HeadStart Learning Team interviewed young people between

